

Profile: JemCare

JemCare Training and Consultancy was formed over 6 years ago. Its Director, Darren Ardeman, started life as a Youth and Community worker. Running centres around the country, Darren gained his qualification in Youth and Community work studies in 1997. Having spent most of his career aiming to integrate young people with special needs into mainstream activity he entered the field of Further Education. He delivered training and assessment services at Newham College of Further Education and Hammersmith College of Further Education. Darren then joined a private training company based in East London and at the same time gained his Postgraduate Certificate in Management Studies.

↳ JemCare has grown exponentially, starting off delivering NVQ assessment and training in Health and Social Care. ↴

After successfully running their adult care section, Darren decided to open his own company in 2003. JemCare has grown exponentially, starting off delivering NVQ assessment and training in Health and Social Care. Jemcare's portfolio of courses now includes Child Care, Playwork, Youth Work and Supporting Teaching and Learning NVQs.

Together with these courses, JemCare has developed a number of complementary courses to support care organisations in the delivery of their services. These include First Aid, Safer Moving and Handling, Safeguarding and Food Hygiene to name a few.

JemCare has always taken pride in its ability to provide high quality customer-focused delivery, more often than not fully funded by LSC, ESF and TSI funding.

JemCare aim to provide a high quality, accountable service with regular feedback to all stakeholders to ensure a positive learning experience and repeat business for our customers.

In more recent times, JemCare has grown to a staff team of over 20 and has developed courses which are focused on Learning Champions and Response to Redundancy.

JemCare continues to receive funds through the Learning and Skills Council, European Social Fund and help employers spend their TSI money.
